

The Quick Summary

You have very mild macular degeneration, so you don't need to worry about anything other than getting checked with us and NOT SMOKING.

Dry Macular Degeneration

Dr. Shalwala has determined that you have dry age-related macular degeneration (dry AMD). Macular degeneration is a disease of the retina, which is the "film" in the back of the "camera of the eye." The macula is the center of the retina and where the center of vision is processed.

In dry AMD, deposits (drusen) form behind the retina. These drusen are markers of problems in the nearby retina, and eventually the retina can totally die ("atrophy") in dry AMD. It is not well known what causes AMD in some patients and not in others, though there are some known risk factors like family history and smoking. The biggest risk factor of all is age, as the disease is extremely uncommon in people under the age of 40.

There is no treatment that improves vision in Dry AMD. Dry AMD will also continue to get worse forever, but the rate of decline is usually slow. In certain stages of AMD, Dr. Shalwala recommends that patients take special eye vitamins. You are not at those stages yet. These vitamins decrease the rate at which AMD gets worse. It is important to understand that vitamins only slow the decline of vision rather than stop it or reverse it.

Dry AMD can change to wet AMD, which is also something that needs to be checked for. We will monitor you for all these changes going forward.
